Biography – Stephen Croson

Stephen's professional life has taken him from the Spanish art world into the film industry, where in the last few years, he has worked closely with Nick Fletcher, art-directing alongside him on an independent feature film. During this working relationship, Nick discovered in Stephen a mutual appreciation and passion for story and a desire to create quality independent feature films.

Stephen originally joined Nick on the Monsoon Tide project as a Producer but soon proved his immeasurable worth to the project. He moved swiftly through the ranks from Art Director to Co-Director all the way to Second Director whilst on location in India – where, to get the film made in the short space of time available, the production had to be split into two units.

A second Director who knew and understood the story was required, and Stephen stepped up to the challenge admirably.

His artistic background and attention to detail have proved real assets in the post-production phase of the film.
